Sánchez, Principal, Sánchez & Associates This program is hosted by GVC SHRM! This program has been pre-approved for 2 Professional Development credits by the Society of Human Resource Management and 2 HR (General) credits by the HR Certification Institute. Often, people do not recognize when they are “privileged” or the impact that has for them and others who may not be “privileged”. This interactive program will help all to understand what “privilege” is, how it may occur, and how to ensure that all have the opportunity to achieve their full potential. Ms. Sanchez will expand the discussion to highlight how Power & Privilege impacts organizations and the strategies to address this. By the end of this session, participants will: •Identify differences based on cultures. •Build bridges with people from different cultures. •Identify assumptions and beliefs that influence our observations. •Define and Identify different types of power. •Develop a deeper understanding of privilege and oppression and the impact on workplace interactions. •Become an ally through personal commitment and action. About our speaker: Margaret A. Sánchez is Principal of Sánchez & Associates, a Rochester-based, organization development consulting firm that provides organizations and individuals with innovative strategies to create positive and lasting results.
